Sections of a Resume

A. Heading

- Include name, address, phone number, and email address. Make sure the information is current.
- Let anyone who may answer your phone (roommates, parents, friends) know you will be expecting phone calls from potential employers! Make sure they take a complete and accurate message in a professional and polite manner.
- Be professional when answering your phone or recording the greeting on your phone – avoid music in the background, sarcastic messages, cussing, etc.

B. Objective or Professional Summary

- A job objective is an optional, brief statement stating the type of position you're seeking. Generally, an objective is used by someone who has recently graduated or has very little experience. It is optional on the resume, but should be included in your cover letter.
- A professional summary is one to three sentences at the beginning of your résumé to help describe the value you bring through your skills and experience. It is more common than an objective, but is also optional.

C. Education

- Include degree, major (minor) or program, school, and graduation date (month/year).
- Spell out the degree you are receiving and include GPA if it is 3.0 or higher.
- May also include an additional section listing relevant courses (3000 level and above only) or descriptions of specific academic projects.

D. Experience

- Include company name, city and state where you worked, your title, date of employment, and duties.
- List each job in reverse chronological order (starting with most recent).
- Duties may be listed as bullets or in paragraph form. However, bullets are advised in most cases for easier reading. Phrase duties in terms of what you accomplished rather than what was required of you and include as much quantifiable information as possible.

E. Skills

- Consider skills you have in communication, conflict resolution, computers, leadership, foreign languages, etc. Remember, you should select skills relevant to the job you are applying for.
- Try to give three to five statements describing the skills that are most relevant to the position.
- Skills may be developed from paid employment as well as volunteer work, internships, activities, and coursework.

F. Honors and Activities

- Include any organizations or committees in which you have been involved.
- Provide information on any offices held, committees served, awards, scholarships, etc. May bullet or provide in paragraph form. If there are too many, list only the most relevant or create two sections.

G. References

- You may simply state “References available upon request” or you may choose to leave this section off. However, be prepared to provide references during the interview or when requested.
- If you choose to include references with your resume, list them on a separate page with your name and contact information at the top followed by the section title REFERENCES. The Reference Page should be typed in the same format as your resume. You’ll need 3-5 professional references and should request permission before listing an individual as a reference. Include the individual’s name, title, organization, address, and phone number as listed below. Under Relationship include a brief description (as shown below) to indicate how that individual knows you.

Mr./Ms./Dr. Name, Title

Organization

Address

Telephone Number

Relationship: Academic Advisor, Current Supervisor, etc.

Types of Resumes

Chronological – Focuses on work history. This format is useful if you are currently working or have worked recently and the work experience is related to your job objective.

Functional – Focuses on your skills and qualifications rather than your actual employment/job titles. A functional format is beneficial if you have been out of work for a length of time, if you have worked for the same company for numerous years, or if you have held several unrelated jobs. If you utilize this format, you will want to provide two to three (no more than five) skill sets and elaborate on how you have developed such skills.

Combination – Utilizes components of the above two formats. Typically used by individuals who have a strong background and find certain characteristics of each useful. A list of skills is provided in addition to describing any relevant experience.

Points to Remember

DO	DON'T
Provide information that is positive and relevant to the job objective.	Provide the reader with your life history or negative information that is not required.
Make use of spacing, bold, capitalization, italics, and indentation to make the resume visually appealing.	Overuse different fonts, graphics, etc. in a way that becomes distracting.
Try to limit to one or two pages. The employer will not take the time to read your resume word for word during the initial screening of resumes.	Include information that is irrelevant simply to fill space.
Use correct terminology related to the industry you are interested in.	Misuse words simply because it sounds impressive or abbreviate terms even when used correctly.
Print resume on 8 ½” X 11” paper. White is preferred but neutral colors are acceptable. Also, do not print in colored ink.	Use paper of an unusual size or color. Fluorescent colors, dark paper, and colored ink are not viewed as professional.
PROOFREAD!!! Check your resume for grammar, punctuation, and spelling. Ask others to critique it.	Assume the computer spell check will catch every mistake.
Leave out information regarding ethnicity, religion, marital status, and age.	Include a photograph or physical description of yourself.

ACTION WORDS

Refer to the list below for help in selecting the right word when writing your resume and cover letter. Remember that the words you use must convey the skills you have developed that are applicable to the position you are applying for. Utilize past tense for previous positions and present tense for current positions.

Writing a Cover Letter

A cover letter is essential when you are not able to personally give your resume to the prospective employer. Your cover letter should be personal and convey to its reader what you know about the employer or organization and how you will best fit in with the organization. The letter should be three to four paragraphs in length and should fulfill four goals.

- 1. Make direct contact between you and the person you are writing to. This first paragraph should contain information on the position you are applying for and how you discovered the position (i.e. newspaper ad, mutual acquaintance, or webpage). If the position has not been advertised then this paragraph should state the type of position you're interested in and alert the reader to the characteristics of the organization that appeal to you.
- 2. Present your skills, experiences, and special attributes as they relate to the needs of the employer. The body of the cover letter should show the employer that you have researched the company and the position. Using the information from your research describe your skills and experience in terms of how you can benefit the company. The prospective employer will want to know why he/she should hire you. Do not restate your resume! Share with the employer your goals as they relate to the employer's goals or mission, your knowledge about their products and/or services, and your knowledge about the industry as a whole.
- 3. Refer the reader to the enclosed resume.
- 4. Initiate direct contact with person reading the letter. Many individuals leave it up to the employer to make the initial contact. This can be viewed as a passive attitude. It is much more assertive and direct to state a date that you will contact the employer to confirm receipt of your resume and discuss what opportunities might be available to you. However, some employers may request that you do not call. In this instance, do not call. Remember, you want to be assertive not aggressive.

Points to Remember

DO	DON'T
Address it to an individual. "To Whom It May Concern" is not as personal as a name. Verify spelling, job title, and gender if necessary.	Use a form letter for every application. You should tailor it to the job description and the company.
Call to find out the name and title of the individual who will be receiving your cover letter and resume (unless the company specifies "No Phone Calls").	If the company requests no phone calls then do not call. Sometimes addressing the letter to the Hiring Manager or the Personnel Manager is unavoidable.
Keep it brief but thorough. Address how your background fits the key requirements in the announcement.	Repeat your resume. Rather, expand on one or two things in your resume that the employer would find impressive.
Make sure the final copy is professional. Use quality paper, use a business letter format, and SIGN THE LETTER.	Make any mistakes. Make sure you check grammar, spelling, punctuation, etc.

Hiring Manager

In the Game Sports
1921 Gregory Street
Valdosta, GA 31605

Dear Hiring Manager:

It is with great enthusiasm that I apply for the position of Social Media Coordinator, recently posted on your website. It has been a long-term professional goal of mine to work for a company that gives back to the community. I believe my initial interest, coupled with my experiences in social media and sports publication makes me a strong candidate for this position.

As an intern with The End Sports Magazine, I had the opportunity to create draft press release for local television. I was also instrumental in developing social media strategies which successfully increased the company's social media presence. In this position I gained written communication skills and attention to detail.

Additionally, I gained marketing experience working with social media platforms and establishing clientele from Tallahassee to Atlanta increasing sales of books for higher education students. Here, I developed excellent communication and problem-solving skills.

Thank you for your time and consideration, and I look forward to the opportunity to speak with you about my candidacy in greater detail.

Sincerely,

Jane Doe
